THURSDAY EVENING. OCT. 27, 1904.

Changes In National Features. Whether we look at portrait galleries, like Hampton court, or turn over illustrations in old books, it is evident that some physiognomical change has been taking place. The stout, plethoric, muscular, ruddy faced man of stolid expression is becoming exceptional, and his place is being taken by a thinner, more alert, active type. The modern face is more keen, leaner and of less coarse mold than that of the older pioneers who laid the foundation of their country's greatness.—"Aspects of Social Evolutions.

A correspondent of an English paper points out nine ways of pronouncing the letters "ough." These are, written phonetically, as in coff, cauf (each is allowable), enuff, thaut, tho, throo, hic-cup, the Irish lough and the Scot's propunciation of sough, "such," the two final consonants in the last two words representing the corresponding guttur-als in German. The editor in comment adds, "There is one other-bough."
